

PAPERS READ

BEFORE THE

LANCASTER COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1915.

"History herself, as seen in her own workshop."

TRANSPORTATION TROUBLES IN LANCASTER
COUNTY DURING THE REVOLUTION

THE PASSING OF LYDIA

MINUTES OF THE DECEMBER MEETING

VOL. XIX. NO. 10.

PRICE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER COPY

LANCASTER, PA.

1916

HISTORICAL PAPERS AND ADDRESSES

OF THE

LANCASTER COUNTY

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

VOLUME XIX

LANCASTER, PA.

1915

PRESS OF
THE NEW ERA PRINTING COMPANY
LANCASTER, PA

PAPERS READ

BEFORE THE

LANCASTER COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1915.

“History herself, as seen in her own workshop.”

TRANSPORTATION TROUBLES IN LANCASTER
COUNTY DURING THE REVOLUTION

THE PASSING OF LYDIA

MINUTES OF THE DECEMBER MEETING

VOL. XIX. NO. 10.

PRICE TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER COPY

LANCASTER, PA.

1916

Transportation Troubles in Lancaster County During the Revolution - - - - - 333

BY MISS LOTTIE M. BAUSMAN

The Passing of Lydia - - - - - 346

Minutes of the December Meeting - - - - - 350

Transportation Troubles in Lancaster County During the Revolution

It is but natural when speaking of events connected with Revolutionary times in Lancaster county that our thoughts go first to the soldiers who went forth to fight for our country's liberty. They went to scenes of activity, and hardships as well, but the cause of their going brought to the little borough of Lancaster an individual activity greater than had ever been known. Therefore, some facts concerning the general conditions occasioned by the war will show that the people of Lancaster, borough and county, who remained at home deserve consideration as well. They were given much work to do, and undoubtedly did it with credit.

Gunsmiths, who had been plying their trade in leisurely fashion, the production of their labors intended mostly to preserve life against Indian hostilities, were now hard pressed for weapons, whose use had another meaning. Given the men and arms to fight the big cause of a country's freedom, necessity compelled the further requirements of munition, food, clothing, horses and wagons. Why was it that when orders were issued for these needs Lancaster county was, in most every case, required to furnish the largest portion? Was it because of its fertility or its generosity, or just its natural ability to do better than the best, which somebody else could do?

In proof of the foregoing, notice how on June 3, 1776, when the Provincial Council (1 "resolved" that, of the 10,000 men to be called out for the militia, Pennsylvania must furnish 6,000. This number was reduced to 4,500 (2) because 1,500 were already in the service of the Province. Then, when the proportions were drawn, the division being made between eight counties, Philadelphia and Lancaster were given 746 (3) each, it being the largest number required. Concerning the means of transportation at this time an item on the minutes of the Board of War for April 3, 1777, says:

"A circular letter was wrote to the following Persons, requesting that each would procure, with all possible dispatch, at least one hundred waggon, to be sent to Robert Irwin, the Waggon Master General, for the purpose of removing the public stores from this City to the west side of Schuylkill."

This order was for people in Philadelphia, Chester and Bucks counties, but attached to it was an additional item explaining that

"Two Letters were likewise wrote to the committee of Lancaster county, and General Mifflin at Reading, to procure the Waggon, to be sent to town, for the beforemention'd purpose." (4)

Another time, July 31, 1777, when the Supreme Executive Council thought it necessary to have a large number of waggon on hand to use in the vicinity of Philadelphia on account of the approach of the enemy, six different counties were called on to supply the demand. Lancaster county was asked for six hundred or more, (5) while the next highest number asked for was four hundred. Concerning this impress of waggon and their use, a halt was called a few days following the order by a letter from the Supreme Executive Council to William Henry, which said:

"Philadelphia, August 7, 1777.—The Fleet of the enemy not having made its appearance at our Capes since Thursday evening last, it is doubtful whether there will be occasion for the Waggon which have been ordered from your county, and as the expense of them will be enormous, you are therefore hereby directed to stop the waggon from coming down until farther orders. You will please to give notice to the several Waggon-Masters in your county, by express, if necessary, of this order, that it may be effectually complied with.

"THOMAS WHARTON, JR.,
"President." (6)

In the meanwhile companies forming here had been supplied with the necessary equipment. Troops going to the front from the West and from the South were promised arms, provisions and clothing when arriving at Lancaster. In January, 1777, Colonel Mackey requested quarters to be ready for 620 men(7) coming from Carlisle, and asked that shoes and stocking be sent to meet them on the road. In August, of the same year, Colonel Galbraith wrote to Colonel Rogers that he should have his people provide their own rations until they arrive at Lancaster.(8) Washington, in his letter to Congress from "camp near Potts-Grove, September 23, 1777,"(9) opens with the sentence—"Sir, I have not had the honor of addressing you since your adjournment to Lancaster," He mentions later on that "If there are any shoes and blankets to be had in Lancaster or that part of the country, I earnestly intreat you to have them taken up for the use of the army." And in conclusion states, "I have ordered all the Virginia militia, who are tolerably armed, to come forward and join the army. Those who have no arms are to wait at Frederic-town in Maryland till they hear whether any can be provided for them at Lancaster: you will, therefore, be pleased to make inquiry what number can be procured there, and send an express to Frederic, with orders for as many men to come forward as there are arms." Truly, Lancaster, in many cases, must have seemed like the promised land. Col Galbraith, in his communication to Colonel Rogers,(10) in June, 1777, said "Everything will be provided for the men at Lancaster, or at the camp, except Blankets." Perhaps his estimate of the capability of the county to meet all conditions was an unintentional prophecy. For is it not possible, even to the present time, to comply with the fact that everything wanted can be gotten at Lancaster?

The duties of the residents of the hustling little borough in the county of Lancaster were not ended with manufacturing necessities and supplying demands of soldiers going through the place. Another duty was to guard and care for the prisoners of war. This was accepted with complaisance. William Atlee cheerfully remarked, when reporting affairs at Lancaster to President Wharton, on January 6, 1777,(11) that "on the 5th instant, Capt. Murray and his guard arrived here with the Hessian Prisoners (I think about eight hundred and thirty) who are placed in our barracks. They are rather crowded at present, being seventeen in a room, but in the course of a week we shall be able to give them more room, as the carpenters are now busy in laying in floors in the additional buildings. and when that is done we can stow away a few more." General Washington and his men took good care, before the war was over, to make it possible to "stow away a few more."

When the Supreme Executive Council came here to hold its sessions, in September, 1777, it added more to the atmosphere of activity. A line of expresses(12) were put in continuous passage from here to headquarters and return, so that the latest news from the seat of war could be had as quickly as possible. War news in those days could not be had from the flash on a wire. It meant the sound of hoofs coming down King street, from the east. Then, as there were no newspaper offices in the windows of which war bulletins could be read, it is reasonable to suppose that interested persons dropped their minor tasks and went to the Court House. Here, no doubt, they waited impatiently for somebody to come out who would tell them the news which the rider had just brought in. Owing to the lack of means to acquaint the people with events occurring, which held for them so much significance, an effort was made to remedy this deficiency. A petition(13) from a number of residents, including Rev. Helfenstein, to the Supreme Executive Council, explains the situation. It reads:

“Lancaster, January the 11th, 1778.

“To the Honorable President and Supreme Executive Council of the State of Pennsylvania:

“We, the subscribers have, with the greatest satisfaction, taken notice of that wise method your Honors have adopted to dispose a number of News Papers among the English inhabitants of this State. The Tenor of this humble address is to ask with due respect, the same kindness for the Germans; the most part of them cannot read English, and some don't understand it; they are used to Dutch News Papers, which (is well known) cannot be provided from the places where they were got formerly. It would be too hazardous for a Printer to undertake the Publication of a paper in the present unsettled state of affairs, and more particularly as it is quite a new Thing here. But should Your Honours be kindly pleased to shew the same benevolence to the Germans as is done to the English in this case, a Printer might adventure to furnish the German Public with a Weekly News Papar. There is no need for urging the necessity & utility of dispersing in the German language Facts of the seven military and Civil Transactions, which always will have their weight and influence, and as we never have observed in the least instance, that Your Honours have made any difference between the Inhabitants of this State in respect of Nations, but always have acted with equal Care toward them. We, whose names are hereunder written, are not only part for whom we solicit this favor, but have it in view more chiefly for the Germans throughout the Country."

This petition must have been recognized in some way as the following month a newspaper made its appearance. Mr. F. R. Diffenderffer, in his paper on "Early German Printers of Lancaster,"(14) says that Francis Bailey printed "The Pennsylvania New-Sheet," from February until June, in 1778. That Mr. Bailey was very busy printing "in the German tongue" can be gathered from two items from Laurens to Washington:(15)

"The bearer hereof is charged with a Packet containing five hundred copies of the Oath of Allegiance and Abjuration; and he is directed to call on Mr. Bailey, printer at Lancaster, for two hundred Copies of the Act for granting Pardons, printed in the German Tongue," 28 April, 1778.

"I have requested Major Brice, who is so obliging as to take charge of this, to receive from Mr. Bailey, printer at Lancaster, five hundred Copies of the Address to Foreign Officers and Soldiers printed in the German Tongue, which he has promised to deliver to Your Excellency," 3 May, 1778.

And still another service was asked of these people who were manipulating the collateral affairs of war. That the military stores placed here had to be well guarded was evident, but the moving of these supplies to the army when required was much the harder part of the task. Facilities of transportation, before 1800, were much limited and as everything had to be moved in wagons, orders were executed with difficulty. The roads, over which went soldiers on foot, riders of express and heavily loaded wagons—were in poor condition. The people in 1770 complained, quoting from Mr. Diefendereff's paper, "An Early Road Petition,"(16)—"That the great Road from the upper parts of the Said County, especially, from the Borough of Lancaster to Philadelphia, is by the constant use of it with heavy Loaded Carriages, and by its being laid in many places on very bad ground, now rendered almost impassable,....." Again, in 1773, an allusion to roads, in Judge Landis' paper on "The Lancaster Stage Dispatch,"(17) shows that at that time there were stumps in the way large enough to upset a lady, or rather the vehicle in which she was riding. For these reasons it must be supposed that the roads a few years later were in an almost similar condition. Even now, orders issued from a stately Capitol, with a substantial quantity of funds to back them up, do not make good roads over night. Hence, poor roads and a dearth of teams, combined with other difficulties, made a situation not very satisfactory for the affairs of George Ross, Jr., D. Q. M.

In December, 1776, Mr. Ross took up the various duties with the appointment he had just accepted. William Atlee, in his report from Lancaster, to the Council of Safety, December 31, 1776, said: "On the 23d of this month the Committee were honored with the Council's letter of the 9th instant, mentioning that the Council had sent a quantity of powder to our care.A quantity a Powder did arrive in Town a few Days before the receipt of that Letter, and General Mifflin being then in Town with Col. Bird, from Reading, & they having appointed Mr. George Ross, Jr., a Deputy Quarter Master here, that Powder was by the General order into Mr. Ross' care, & is very probably the Powder meant by the Council."(18)

That the office of Deputy Quarter Master was no sinecure must be acknowledged if one would judge from the many things required and the attending difficulties. The powder which had just been brought to Lancaster became a source of trouble for "The Inhabitants being uneasy at the Powder & some other Stores being placed in our Court House & new Goal,"(19) the committee directed to have it moved elsewhere. This removal and getting quarters for the soldiers at the taverns and private houses because the barracks was housing the prisoners seems to have been the initial work of the new Deputy Quarter Master.(20)

During the hard winter of 1777-1778 much clothing was required from this part of the country. Washington, when he wrote to Congress from "Headquarters, White-Marsh, Nov. 17, 1777," said: "Several general officers, unable to procure clothing in the common line, have employed agents to purchase up what could be found in different parts of the country. General Wayne, among others, has employed Mr. Zantzinger, of Lancaster, who has purchased to the amount of four thousand five hundred pounds, for which he desires a draught upon the treasury-board.—Inclosed you have a copy of his letter.—I am not clear whether this application should properly be made to the treasury, or the clothier-general, who should charge the money to the regiments for whom the clothes are, as so much advanced to them. If the latter should appear the most proper mode, I will order it to be done"(21). Congress took up this matter two different times, but gave it final consideration on December 10th, when in session it ordered "That a warrant issue on Thomas Smith, Esqr., commissioner of the continental loan office in the State of Pennsylvania, in favour of James Mease, Esqr., cloathier-general, for $12,000, advanced him towards the payment of cloathing, purchased by Mr. Zantzinger, for the use of Brigadier General Wayne's division; the said cloathier-general to be accountable."(22). Knowing the urgent need of the suffering soldiers, it was not always possible for Mr. Ross to send the clothing when it was ready to be forwarded because of the lack of teams. In January, 1778, Congress ordered 30,000 barrels of flour, 12,000 to be stored at or near Lancaster. (23). In the same month an order was issued to the wagon-masters for wagons "with four horses and driver for services in camp"(24). Lancaster wagons were to call on Col. Ross for forage. In both these cases teams were needed. It was now that matters concerning transportation were becoming complicated. Mr. Ross drew a clear picture of his troubles in a letter to Col. Gibson, and explains to him the unpleasant situation of affairs at this period. This letter is in Mr. Ross' handwriting, and is the property of the New York Public Library(25), through whose courtesy a copy was allowed for this paper.

"Lancaster, 2 March 1778—Sir, I received your Note desiring me to furnish four Waggon's for the purpose of conveying some Cloathing to Headquarters—I am sorry that I am under the Necessity of Informing you that it is out of my Power to furnish them until I can send off an Express to the Wmaster General of this county—who lives about fifteen miles from this—A Similar Application happened last Weasday by a Lieut. Gamble for 5 teams for the same purpose—I did not know when to apply, the Wmaster of this District being gone with some teams to camp: I however Detirmin'd to wait on the President and Councils to know what was to be done—they told me they knew of no other Method than by sending off an Express to Wmaster of the County which I immediately did—he came down & to my great Surprise told me they could not be had—that he had received orders for a certain quota & that he (had) been making them up & Could procure no More without further orders—for which he apply'd to Councils & then was told they could give him no further Assistance—the WDepartment, but that the Assembly perhaps might see the Inconvenience & remedy the law—that they had gone as far as authorized by the Law in appointing him a Wmaster for this county & that he had appointed his Deputys in Battalion Districts according to the Law—then in this hopeful situation, the WDepartment is—in order to forward Mr. Gamble's cloathing I have sent off two of my Forage teams & two Continental teams which happened to be here—Indeed the prospect of sending the quota of teams from this County is very discouraging. Several Brigades which were not to be less than 12 Waggon's to my certain Knowledge are gone to camp with but 7 —& further the Wmaster of this District told me that he could not get a constable to execute a Warrant for bringing in some teams which had been warn'd & refused to attend—In short I am afraid if the Army depend on the present mode of procuring teams—they will be disapointed—for over & above the quota to be raised. I am call'd upon every day for more or less teams & shall be obliged on every application as I am on yours to send off an express to the Wmaster—which will delay the team or teams at least 3 days—those Sir are the difficulties the Department labours under & which I wish you and the whole Army to know.

"I am sir with respect

"Your humble Servant

"G. ROSS, JR., D. Q. M."

Considering the drain on the county up to this time for supplies of all kinds, it is no wonder the inhabitants were holding back the small remaining part. But it did not make things easy for the wagon department. How must Mr. Ross have viewed the order for the purchase in Lancaster county of forty horses(26), issued eight days after his complaint to Col. Gibson? Here is another instance where, in the division between eleven counties, the largest part was asked of Lancaster. The wagonmaster of the county, who shared with Mr. Ross the trials of the "hopeful situation" of the wagon department, was James Bailey. He lived near Marietta(27), and held the office of wagonmaster from January 9, 1778, until March 13,, 1778(28).

Col. Gibson, who requested Mr. Ross to forward some clothing to headquarters, was, undoubtedly, Col. John Gibson, son of Lancaster's first tavernkeeper, George Gibson. At the time the letter was written Col. John Gibson was at Valley Forge. Washington, in his letter to Congress from "Valley Forge, dated May 28, 1778," says: "Lieutenant-colonel John Gibson, of the sixth Virginia regiment, who, from his knowledge of the western country, and Indian nations and language, is ordered to repair to Pittsburg will have the honor of delivering you this. He is entitled, and has been ever since the twenty-fifth of October last, to a regiment in that line; and I must take the liberty to request that Congress will give him a commission of that date."

So the people who remained at home, those of the busy little borough and those of the fertile acres, worked hard and well to do their share in the cause of freedom.

REFERENCES.

1 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 572.

2 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 574.

3 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 579.

4 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. I, page 23.

5 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 99.

6 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 100.

7 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 537.

8 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 480.

9 Washington Letters, Vol. 2, page 141.

10 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 476.

- 11 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 540.
- 12 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 116.
- 13 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 141.
- 14 Lanc. Co. Historical Society, Vol. VIII, page 53.
- 15 Journals of the Continental Congress, Vol. XII, page 1283.
- 16 Lanc. Co. Historical Society, Vol. X, page 151.
- 17 Lanc. Co. Historical Society, Vol. XIX, page 127.
- 18 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 533.
- 19 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 540.
- 20 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. XIII, page 541.
- 21 Washington Letters, Vol. 2, page 172.
- 22 Journals of the Continental Congress, Vol. IX, page 1017.
- 23 Journals of the Continental Congress, Vol. X, pages 54, 166.
- 24 Manbert's History of Lancaster County, page 269.
- 25 Manuscript Division, Emmett Collection, No. 8226.
- 26 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 157.
- 27 Ellis and Evans' History of Lancaster County, page 764.
- 28 Penna. Archives, 2d Series, Vol. III, page 653.
- 29 Washington Letters, Vol. 2, page 229.

The Passing of Lydia

From the Baltimore Sun.

Strange, is it not, how through some familiar medium of daily life the closed book of the heart's tender memories is sometimes opened. A newspaper sent from a distant city—the Red Rose City of Lancaster, Pa., by chance the birthplace of the writer—lies open in the hand. The New Era is its title, but in the edition perused its message pertains to an old era, the era when King George H. reigned in merry England. It records the placing by the Lancaster County Historical Society of a tablet upon a limestone boulder to mark the spot where, in 1729, the first Courts of Justice in that locality were held in the public house of John Postlethwaite, then occupying a commanding country site and located upon "the Great Conestoga Road," the first great highway built from Philadelphia to the Susquehanna, a road that extended over the then new shire for thirty miles from Octoraro to Conestoga, the road that stretches to-day, 201 years old, through the same prosperous Scotch-Irish, English and German-Swiss settlements.

Before the coming of the white men an Indian wigwam occupied the spot afterward covered by John Postlewaite's public house. Here chiefs sat in a council and doubtless smoked their pipes of peace, and on April 2, 1771, after the Courts removed to Lancaster, the land came into possession of Andrew Fehl, whose descendants have owned and occupied it ever since.

Upon the gala occasion referred to several hundred people assembled at this historic spot and the story of the past was recalled and retold by many eminent men. To read of the awakening of a district to the value of its historic heritage is inspiring, but after the pageant picture by the written word-picture has faded there remains upon the canvas of memory some pictures infinitely sweet and tender, associated with the reader's memories of early childhood and that old house.

Memory recalls the simple dignity of an old country 'squire, Jacob Fehl, who, like his predecessors in that house, dispensed justice and married lovers within the homestead's walls.

The faces of two sweet faced, ancient ladies, the 'squire's gentle wife and whole-souled, warm-hearted sister, are evoked—they whose housewifely care and beauty and comfort to the home, as the industry of the farming 'squire and his stalwart sons brought prosperity to the farm. Daughters there were, also, pretty girls, who married and went forth to become the centres of other happy homes located within sight and sound of the old home place, but fairer than all upon memory's canvas is the picture of Lydia, the daughter, who never married, but who, in spirit, was twin sister to that dear woman whom Jean Ingelow has pictured in her poem "High Tide on the Coast of Lincolnshire." She whom the old man calls: My sonne's faire wife, Elizabeth," and of whom he so tenderly says, "a sweeter woman ne'er drew breath."

So of Lydia Fehl! The sweetness of her personality pervaded the old homestead as the perfume of flowers filled the garden she loved, for flowers responded blithely to the tending of Lydia's hand. Within the sanctuary of the home the strength of her guiding character was felt, her industry contributed to the peace and order of the house, but somehow the largeness of Lydia's nature was like the golden sunshine of the open and memory glimpses her most often beside the gushing water of the old-fashioned pump or beneath the fruit-laden apple boughs of the orchard beside the house, with dogs frisking about her feet and a kitten vainly trying to reach the swaying fascination of her sunbonnet strings. Or, at the day's decline, the sunset picture of Lydia seated upon the roomy porch, with all the children who loved her nestled about her knees. For children loved and trusted her, as they love and trust only the pure in heart—and of Lydia's sanctity of soul there could be no question. That romance had touched her youth, that she had loved and lost, gave her a deeper interest to girlish minds; that she was a reader of books and a dreamer, that household tasks often lay unfinished while Lydia, book in hand, forgot the fleeting hours, only added to her lovesome charm. Her ways, like her name, were full of harmony—softly she came and went. The sick blessed her soothing hand, the poor blessed her generous hand, the children loved her caressing hand. And then, suddenly, in the sweet fullness of her gracious womanhood, Lydia passed from life into immortality. Passed and was seen no more, but those who knew her felt that the poet, William Sharp, spoke truly when he said, concerning that which we in blindness call death, that "Death is not only change or sleep; it is God's seal to sanctify the soil's advance."

Miss Lydia Lantz, the writer of the above article, "The Passing of Lydia," is a native of Lancaster county. She has been a resident of Baltimore for a number of years and contributes to the woman's page of the Baltimore Sun. She is a relative of the Fehl family. A copy of The New Era containing the report of the Postlethwaite celebration was forwarded to her by a Lancastrian.

Minutes of December Meeting

Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 3, 1915.

The Lancaster County Historical Society held its last meeting for the present year on Friday evening, and while no formally prepared paper was read, it proved to be one of the most interesting sessions of the society has held for some time.

The librarian, Miss Lottie Bausman presented the following report:

Bound Volumes—Report of the Commissioner of Health, Pt. 1-2, 1912; Report of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, Pt. I, II, III, IV, 1913-14; Report of the Water Supply Commission, 1914; Report of the Insurance Commissioner, 1914, from the State Library; History of Lehigh County (three volumes), from Col. J. F. Trexler, Allentown.

Pamphlets—Proceedings of the Tenth Annual Conference of Historical Societies; Linden Hall Echo; International Conciliation; Bulletin of the New York Public Library; Bulletin of the Grand Rapids Library; Bulletin of the Carnegie library, Pittsburgh.

The most valuable donation was a copy of the Anniversary History of Lehigh County, being the gift of Col. H. C. Trexler. The books, three volumes, are of great historic interest and will prove of inestimable value to historians.

A vote of thanks was extended all the donors and the secretary directed to write a special letter of thanks to Col. Trexler.

The following were proposed for membership: Mrs. Grace Collins Scott, of No. 110 East Walnut street, Lancaster, Pa.; Theo. W. Scott, of No. 110 East Walnut street, Lancaster, Pa.; David Neal Postlethwaite, Wyandotte building, Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Lewraine G. Magee, No. 116 East Walnut street, Lancaster, Pa., A. R. Caldwell, Safe Harbor, R. No. 1; Miss Anna M. Weaver, No. 924 Columbus avenue, Lancaster, Pa.

New members were elected as follows: B. F. Fackenthal, Reigelsville; Willis E. Byers, of Lampeter; Miss Susan C. Frazer, Miss Marian Wallace, this city; M. M. Leib, Mt. Joy, and Walter H. Pool, East Petersburg.

The committee appointed on the indexing of the society's old pamphlets reported progress.

Miss Clark read several humorous poems which had been sent to the society by a Philadelphian. Two of them were published in early Lancaster magazines. Their reading provided considerable enjoyment.

A. K. Hostetter read an interesting clipping from a York newspaper of an article on conditions in York during the Civil War, in which reference was made to General Lee's refusal to shell the town of Gettysburg because he would not destroy church property. The paper brought forth some remarks from D. F. Magee, Esq., a native of Virginia, who knew well several of the Confederate generals.

The tribute, published a few days ago in The New Era, and paid to Miss Lydia Fehl, by a writer of the Baltimore Sun, was read and the society decided to have it published in the monthly pamphlet.

Miss Bausman brought up the question of future papers for the society, urging the members to give more attention to the preparation of historical articles, in order that the society can continue to issue the bulletins. These are always in great demand, especially by people living in other cities and States, and their publication has added wonderfully to the standing of the society. Members are urged to prepare matters along the lines the society is operating and if they are acceptable they will be published and preserved. Miss Bausman's remarks were endorsed by other members.

The old officers were renominated for another term, with the exception of one of the Vice Presidencies. The place held by the late W. U. Hensel will be filled by the election of Judge C. I. Landis.

CONTENTS OF VOLUME XIX.

	Pages.
Gentle Jimmy Brown, the Bashful Bard of Bart, by W. U. Hensel	5
Minutes of the January Meeting.....	16
In Memoriam	19
Officers of the Society for 1915.....	21
Librarian's Annual Report	22
Secretary's Annual Report	24
Treasurer's Annual Report	26
Lancaster Bible Society, 1815-1915, by D. C. Haverstick.....	35
Minutes of February Meeting	62
Lititz as an Early Musical Center, by Herbert H. Beck.....	71
Minutes of the March Meeting	82
Report of the Committee on the W. U. Hensel Tablet Unveiling.	89
Minutes of the April Meeting	121
The Lancaster Stage Dispatch, by Judge C. I. Landis.....	127
An Interesting Relic	153
Minutes of the May Meeting	156
Manheim Township and Its Part in the Indian History of the County, by C. H. Martin	163
A Withered Twig, by W. U. Hensel.....	174
Minutes of the June Meeting	182
A Revolutionary Patriot and His Worthy Grandson, by Mrs. James D. Landis	189
Report of Annual Outing of the Society	200
Minutes of the September Meeting	208
Report of the Committee Having Charge of the Marking of the Site of the Postlethwaite Tavern Where the First Courts of Justice in Lancaster County Were Held.....	219
Minutes of October Meeting	302
The Garden of Pennsylvania, by Miss Lottie M. Bausman.....	311
The Liberality of Lancaster County, 1793-1794, by Miss Lottie M. Bausman	326
Transportation Troubles in Lancaster County During the Revo- lution, by Miss Lottie M. Bausman	333
The Passing of Lydia	346
Minutes of the December Meeting	350

ILLUSTRATIONS.

James Scott Brown	Opposite page 5
W. U. Hensel, 1851-1915	Opposite page 89
The Lincoln Celebration	Opposite page 100
Tablet	Opposite page 108
The Hotel Site in 1843	Opposite page 116
Postlethwaite Tavern in Early Times	Opposite page 218
Postlethwaite Tavern As It Now Appears.....	Opposite page 240
Map of Postlethwaite Tract.....	Opposite page 245
Map of Old Conestoga	Opposite page 292
Boulder and Postlethwaite Family	Opposite page 296
Boulder and Tablet	Opposite page 300

